

We purchase our seed from companies that offer organic, non-GMO seed and make every effort to purchase open-pollinated varieties so we can save our own seen whenever possible.

Our Favorite Seed Catalog Resources:

Johnny's Selected Seeds www.Johnnyseeds.com 1-877-564-6697
Winslow, Maine

Johnny's is an employee owned company that has been in business since 1973. Their catalog is packed full of excellent cultural information and growing advice and worth having for a resource even if you choose not to order from them. They never use genetically engineered or modified seeds or plants and have plenty of early season varieties to choose from.

High Mowing Organic Seeds www.highmowintseeds.com 1-802-472-6174
Wolcott, Vermont

All of their seed is certified organic, which matters to use since we are a certified organic farm. They have over 600 varieties of organic see and we have been happy with the quality and seed viability. Lots of open pollinated so we can save the seed.

Territorial Seed Company www.TerritorialSeed.com 1- 800-626-0866
Cottage Grove, Oregon

Family owned business since 1979 out of Cottage Grove, Oregon. They have some unique varieties as well, and worth checking out for price comparison. They also hold the "Safe Seed Pledge", which means they pledge that they do not knowingly buy or sell genetically engineered seeds or plants.

Peaceful Valley Farm & Garden Supply www.GrowOrganic.com 1-888-784-1722
Grass Valley, CA

Lots of certified organic seed as well as some heirloom varieties. Some worthy articles and videos on-line as well.

These are just our short list. There are many seed sources out there. I encourage you to use open pollinated, non-hybrid varieties whenever you can so you can save your own seed. Every micro-climate has different needs. If you are new to an area, ask other growers, gardeners, small acreage farmers where they get their seed. Take good notes, trial different kinds and see what works best for you!
